

Scout Oath opening

Tonight, we will light three candles represent the promise of our Scout Oath.

This is the blue of our Scouting movement, representing our duty to God and our country. It reminds us that our program is built on faith and respect for our nation. We teach our scouts to be responsible citizens and to live by a core moral code.

This is the red of our Scouting movement, representing our duty to other people. It reminds us that Scouting is not just about ourselves, but about the community we serve. We challenge our Scouts to perform a Good Turn daily, and to help others at all times, making the world a better place.

This is the white of our Scouting movement, representing our duty to ourselves. It reminds us that we train Scouts to be physically strong and mentally awake, empowering them to succeed in the life.

These three promises: duty to God and country, duty to others, and duty to self are the pillars of our program.

The Scout Law with its twelve points, further guides our youth toward being respectful, responsible, and caring individuals.

As we begin our meeting, let us reaffirm our commitment to these values. Please rise and join us in the Scout Oath and Law.
